The Great Shipping Ports. New York is now the greatest ship ping port in the world. For years the distinction belonged to London, and Boston was second. Now London is third, being led by New York and Antwerp. New York, London and Autwerp each had above 10,000,000 tous registered shipping enter during the year. You might guess wrong if asked the second American port in the matter of tonnage. It is Duluth, Minn, at the western end of the great lake route. It is the lake route which makes the United States second in the world's merchant marine, with practically no carriers in foreign commerce. In the export trade Galveston is second to New York as a anipping port and is growing rapidly.
